MEDIEVAL TORTURES IN CHILI

French Army Maneuvers Mock the Hippers Latest Australian Textiles Late News from Chili Foreign News Notes

London Aug 8 A Rome dispatch says that the Italian cabinet was recently sounded by the French ambassador to the Vatican on the subject of a possible settlement of the row between the papacy by extending the limit of papal jurisdiction over the city of Rome Italy to have rights of a garrisoning force that might be required to protect the welfare of the kingdom When the matter was submitted to King Humbert he declined to give it even a moments consideration and declared that Rome would forever remain the capital of United Italy that he would as soon think of surrendering his crown as to recognizing any other authority in Rome, and that's how the head of the Catholic church it was farthest from his mind to surrender one iota of what had been won with so much sacrifice and suffering by the Italian people The French ambassador took back the answer to the Vatican where there was much chagrin as it appears to have been supposed that the king was in a frame of mind less uncompromising than formerly A prominent citizen stated when he heard of the matter that even if Italy should ever abandon Rome the Romans themselves would never again submit to the papal yoke.

A STRATEGIC SELECTION

The selection of Brienne as an objective point for the French army maneuvers is considered as significant, that place having been the scene of a severe defeat of the Prussians and their allies by the French under Napoleon I The French army maneuvers this year will, like the German be a close reproduction of war than usual to actual war. The sudden activity of the German military factories at Spandau has attracted considerable attention the factories there having but lately been nearly idle and having dispensed with a large number of hands, many of whom have now been taken back

A RUSE OF THE POLICE.

The London police insist on a theory of murder in the case of the old woman Woolfe, found dying this morning from horrible wounds that suggested the work of Jack the Ripper The police have found that the woman was insured for £30 for the benefit of her son and they allege that she probably cut herself with the razor in order to give the impression of a ripper murder and to secure the insurance to her son, she being aged and feeble and with no interest in life. Physicians, however, say that it was impossible for the woman herself to have inflicted the wounds, and some still assert that the police are hopeless of catching the murderer, and wish to dismiss the case as self-perpetrated

AUSTRALIAN POLITICS.

From Victoria, Australia, comes news of the political excitement. The farmers and sheepshearers are holding large meetings in favor of free trade, as these interests are opposed to the interests of protection, and the miners also have come out generally in favor of free trade The Australian farmers and sheep men have a secure and profitable market for their products and that protection favors only to the benefit of the cities and manufacturing centers. The Victorians believe that the next election in the colony will turn of this question.

EARL SALISBURY MISSES HOME.

Lord Salisbury has departed for the continent, where he will spend part of his vacation in interviews with continental statesmen Queen Victoria has caused some surprise by her emphatic comment that the greatest honors shall be shown to the French naval officers when they arrive at Portsmouth. It is said that this is largely due to the queen's recollection of her hospitable reception during her stay at Grasse, when a portion of the French fleet remained in adjoining waters, a naval guard of honor.

NEWS FROM CHILI.

San Diego, Cal., Aug 7 —An officer of the United States steamship Pensacola which arrived yesterday from Chili stated to an Associated Press correspondent that the progress made so far by either party in Chili is small The Congressional party has plenty of money while Balmaceda is flooding the country with paper money. At Valparaiso the English sovereign is worth 3 Chilian dollars Balmaceda's new cruisers are from Europe in good shape for engagement, the insurgents have defeated but if anything happens to their ships, it is impossible to predict the result and the war may continue for a year Both parties are well supplied with ammunition So far only three engagements have been fought. None of them have been serious and the insurgents have been victorious each time.

New York, Aug. 7 —The following personal narrative of the tortures inflicted upon Balmaceda's government upon a suspect to force him to a confession of complicity in the revolution party is given in a recent issue of El Industrial of Antofagasta, Chili. Dr. Valdivia was a gentlemen named Barahona who gained his liberty after a long confinement in prison, following his torture.

"About 9:30 p. m., on the 26th of February he said "I had a brief friendly conversation with Col. Desideo Labaca at agricultural school in Santiago. When I was about to depart, Col Julio Valdivia, detained me and had me as a prisoner to the barracks of the Seventh regiment, where I was placed over me An hour and a half Carvilla Orego, chief of police, arrested and conducted me personally to headquarters. Here I was placed in a room Senor Valdez Calderon told me that he will formulate an accusation He did not say charging me with having tried to take Colonel Labaca and officers of the Seventh regiment from their posts I denied the charge and explained that my visit to Labaca had been simply out of a friendly chat with an old friend and was utterly devoid of political bearings

"He declared that I must confess my guilt He had me put in irons and taken to a cell where he insisted upon a confession I protested my innocence, which left handcuffed me with my hands behind my back and my elbows drawn to the rear. He put a stick between my arms and began to twist it causing the most horrible pains. I begged him and my dentist he gave a fall struck crushing my chest and I declared I begged for death, declaring I would rather die than make a statement as they were attempting to force me Valdivi Calderon replied I did not care a straw for my life, but I wished to get at the names of those who had commissioned me and who he believed were the committee. He declared that I would be tortured until I had confessed or that I should die. He continued to twist the stick until the ropes broke, leaving my arm in an indescribable condition.

He left the dungeon, but returned almost immediately with his agent Garrido and notified me that I should receive 300 lashes. Half an hour later Valdivi Calderon returned accompanied by Garrido and four other men They stripped and stretched me over the floor and the flogging was begun by a tall powerful man Thick sticks were used in the flogging After every few blows Valdivi would stop and question me as to whether I desired to make This was continued until I had received 100 lashes Then Valdivi ordered the men to turn me over on my back so that my chest and stomach might be lashed

Finally, being angered at not gaining his object he said, 'Let us make an end of it' He directed two soldiers to enter the dungeon I was ordered to kneel while the soldiers leveled their guns at me After a moment seeing my silence he ordered me to get up but I endeavored to rise but my wretched body would not obey my will Seeing this Valdivi exclaimed, 'Drop him let him die.'

At length they dressed me again and carrying me between two of them seated me in a chair All this time I was shockingly Lashed to Ruffled with my arms strained on my spine I remained seated in the chair until 8 p. m. of the following day

After that I was left in strict solitary confinement except that a physician came to examine my wounds I remained for nineteen days in bed on account of the injuries I had received The torture which had been applied to my arms had so affected my chest and whole organization that I could not move without assistance I had been whipped on the cheeks and finger tips. I do not know whether it was by accident or through intention The whipped parts of my body remained one huge swelling By the pressure of the ropes which Valdivi had twisted with all his strength and with the rage of impotency, not succeeding in his object, the blood had been impelled to the extremities, making my arms and legs like logs of wood When the ropes suddenly snapped the blood rushed forcibly to the heart and brain producing a sensation so horrible that I believed myself passing through the agonies of death"

More Fighting Wanted

Paris, Aug 7 —A telegram received in this city to-day from Buenos Ayres asserts that Chili will declare war against Bolivia because the government of the latter country has recognized the Congressional party of Chili as belligerents.

Food Scarce in Russia

St Petersburg, Aug 7 —The Russian imperial council has decided to prohibit the exportation of corn from this country owing to the bad harvest in Russia which has caused a scarcity of this cereal.

A Denial from Blaine.

Bar Harbor, Maine, Aug 7. —Inquiry at all hotels failed to reveal the presence of either ex-Collector Erhardt or Dr Baldwin in Bar Harbor Inquiry at the Blaine cottage elicited an absolute denial of knowledge of the immediate whereabouts of either of these gentlemen. It was said, however, that some time ago Dr. Baldwin wrote Mr Blaine intimating him of his intention to visit America for a vacation Mr. Blaine has no knowledge of his reported intention to visit Bar Harbor and certainly has no intention of seeing him professionally. Mr. Blaine refuses to see anyone who is upon a political mission or to talk politics at all therefore it is exceedingly doubtful if he would if Collector Erhardt should be coming

Mr. Emmons Blaine said to a reporter of the United Press to-night "There is nothing in the report that Dr Baldwin is coming to Bar Harbor to see my father professionally. If he is coming at Bar Harbor at all my father knows nothing of it. He has not been sent for and my father has no need of a physician. My father has taken any medicine for nearly two months He is as well as usual very well indeed, and is gaining all the time.

"As to the reported visit of ex-Collector Erhardt of New York, I can say nothing, I did not know that he was coming and up to this time I know that he has not called on my father."

The papers in the suit for divorce brought by Mrs. James G. Blaine Jr were served on young James today by the sheriff here. Dearborn is the second hot one, but cool.

New Haven, Conn., Aug 7.—Dr. Wm. B. Baldwin of Florence, Italy, was in Branford town today. His brother Charles in an interview said: "My brother came to America partly on business I suppose he will visit Mr Blaine before he returns."

Just then William Baldwin entered the room and said "I have not seen Mr. Blaine and will not say whether I shall see him or not. It is not the duty of a physician to make such matters public, nor has the public anything to do with my business. It will not be known whether I shall see Mr. Blaine or not."

Turning to his brother he chided him for intimating that he (William) would see Mr. Blaine, saying, "You don't know whether I will or not, I did not tell you."

Nevertheless Dr. Baldwin left for Bar Harbor to-night.

The Sub-Treasury Scheme.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug 7 —The Star's Topeka, Kan., special says S. M Scott, of McPherson, the Alliance lecturer to whom has been entrusted the sub-treasury agitation, is preparing an article in answer to the letter written by Colonel Harrison Leavenworth. He said to-day that the statement made about the Alliance renouncing the sub-treasury scheme was entirely without foundation.

"In every county which has yet voted on the sub-treasury" he said, "it has been indorsed overwhelmingly It has been apparent to many of the Alliance leaders that they must indorse the sub-treasury, if the People's party organization in its present form is preserved It has never been indorsed by the national Alliance convention and the Kansas State Alliance has never considered it. It cannot therefore be made a test of Alliance faith, but from a political standpoint, it is a necessity. It was incorporated in the People's party platform at Cincinnati, and the work done by this convention, platform and all, has been approved by nearly every sub Alliance in the state

Pension Work.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Pension-commissioner Raum in a letter to Acting-secretary Nettleton says that in the year just closed 156,452 original certificates were issued, which is 80,845 more than has ever been issued in any one year There are pending 329 486 claims, but the office is working them off at the rate of 30,000 per month This letter was written in response to a letter from Acting-secretary Nettleton on complaint of a soldier at the delay of the pension office. Commissioner Raum says he is doing the best he possibly can and is informed that a sentiment of satisfaction exists among soldiers at the work of the pension office.

An Aboriginal Yarn.

San Diego, Cal., Aug 7 —A Yuma correspondent says a report brought in by the Cocopah Indians state that the earthquake on the 20th ult. resulted in changing the course of the Colorado river It has left its old bed and now flows through a crevasse forty feet wide and a thousand feet long. The report is not generally believed.

Driven Out by Thieves.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 7.—Durbin Bros., who started in the cattle business in Carbon county fifteen years ago, are driving the last of their great herds to Montana. They leave this state almost solely to get away from the thieves. Other outfits will leave unless something is done to stop the stealing.

Another body has been found in the ruins of the West Shore wreck near Montezuma. This makes the number of dead fourteen.

An Increase in the Demand for Better Grain

FOREIGN DEMAND FOR OUR GRAIN

Chicago Grain Receipts Seven Hundred Cars Weekly Bank Clearings Bulls at Work

New York, Aug. 8 —Dun & Co's Weekly Review of Trade says

With the harvest nearly completed disappointingly little effect thereof has been yet felt Instead of the usual depression in business at this season, there is a steady tone to prices, and brighter and more confident feeling in all departments of trade Speculation is active, and the volume of business continues large Exports of breadstuffs for the week are 3,500,000 bushels against 3,000,000 last year Failures for the week number 237 in the United States against 220 last year, and 39 in Canada, against 32 last year

Bulls at Work

Chicago, Aug 8 —Wheat has been the principal feature in the speculative markets to-day Prices have been advanced from 1 to 2 cents per bushel, and the volume of business has been very large Shorts have been the principal sufferers, and the bulls have had matters their own way Corn has been dragged along in sympathy with wheat, and has shown a gain of 1 cent per bushel Provisions have been dull and weak, and prices have declined 5 to 10 cents per barrel

Cotton manufactures still finds a fairly large demand and at some reduction in prices most goods are moving freely Bleached goods are lower and print cloths dull The woolen manufacture is distinctly improving and sales of wool at Boston rise to 5,150 000 pounds the sales there at Philadelphia and at New York since January 1st, 60,000,000 against 130,000,000 pounds last year to the same date At Boston trade in merchandise increases and is very good for boots and shoes and western and southern reports quite favorable Sales of wool are large at Hartford and of dry goods increasing

TRADE AT PHILADELPHIA

In most trades there is much complaint of slow collections but considerable activity is seen in glass and fair sales of paints and chemicals at Philadelphia with improvement in shoes, hides and leather

At Pittsburg manufactured iron is fairly active and the glass trade good but collections rather slow

At Cleveland trade is enlarging with confidence and at Cincinnati the furniture trade is especially growing

Chicago feels the effect of great crops distinctly, wheat receipts being seven fold last year's, rye five fold, barley two fold, wool nearly double, and in corn, beef, butter and hogs some increase appears, as also in sales of dry goods Sales of clothing and shoes are larger than ever before at this season, and in all lines collections are satisfactory. At other western points the crop prospects are almost everywhere mentioned as unsurpassed and at St. Louis the demand for money in the interior grows more pressing, and commercial borrowers are held closely to their needs.

IN THE SOUTH AND WEST.

At Minneapolis and St. Paul, Omaha and Kansas City trade is generally good; at Louisville and Nashville improving, and at Montgomery the demand for goods is fair, while at Memphis and Savannah reports of trade are less favorable, and at Jacksonville business is very dull. Unfavorable weather has strengthened cotton at New Orleans, and the demand for sugar is good with rice strong and money in good demand but with supplies ample for legitimate trade

Prices for commodities are going down, and for the first time this year the general level is lower than a year ago, having declined 5 per cent. the past week Financial prospects have not changed and though money on call is cheap, commercial loans are made with caution. Foreign imports of breadstuffs in New York in July were 19 per cent. below last year, while exports largely increase. The demand for money to move crops begins to be felt by many banks in delaying the week that the usual is taken in from circulation $30,000 more than it has paid out. Foreign exchange has fallen from $4.86¼ to $4.85¼ and some talk of gold imports is now heard.

The business failures are fine throughout the country during the last seven days number, for the United States 209, and for Canada 24, or a total of 233, as compared with a total of 247 last week and 254 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 208, representing 179 failures in the United States and 29 in the Dominion of Canada.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Aug 7.—The fighting fight which has raged the Union Pacific company's managers for months is now to be taken up by a syndicate organized chiefly from the company's directors. The company's obligations will be accepted for a period of three years if necessary. This syndicate, comprising one powerful banking house and several well known capitalists practically guarantees for the present Union Pacific's financial stability and confirms the belief of careful observers that the financiers now in control of this great property cannot afford to let it suffer. This one railroad system is, in many ways, a key to the extensive plans of railroad harmony entered upon by some financiers eight months ago.

On the strength of this news, as might be expected, the market moved up this morning It opened firm with a slight reaction in Union Pacific, which was subsequently recovered, and at noon substantial advances from yesterday's highest figures had been recorded. There was a heavy buying on Union Pacific as the day wore on and as the news of the formation of the syndicate became known Sugar Trust was also largely bought, it was said, for the purpose of squeezing the shorts. Isadore Wormser took over 10,000 shares of Sugar Trust. London was a heavy buyer of St. Paul, taking 4000 shares at the opening. The advance at noon in the general market ranged from 1¼ to 1½ per cent The market continued to advance from mid-day on a moderate buying within a few minutes of the close when there was some selling to realize and a sharp reaction. The closing figures, however, were ¼ to 2 per cent. higher than those of yesterday There were a number of large buying orders in New York and New England to-day. One of them was for 5000 shares and two others for 2000 and 2500 respectively The sales to-day amounted to 237,328 shares.

Alleged Stealings.

Denver, Aug 7 —The mayor's committee of investigation claim to have uncovered some very apparent steals. The statements are that a bill for $49.20 for stationery from the Smith-Brooks Printing company was made $468.50 and another from the same firm for $13.40 was made $315.40. A bill from the Denver Carriage company for $30.50 became $330.50. These firms claim that only the original amounts were paid them.

A Rain Hunting Party.

St. Louis, Aug 7.—A Fort Worth, Tex., special says: On the west-bound Texas and Pacific train this morning was a party of gentlemen composed of Lieutenant Dyer of the Fourth artillery, general director of the works; Prof. F. C. Myers and C. W. Cosiier, balloonists; Dr. Rossli, chemist; Paul A. Draper, electrician; George W. Curtis, meteorologist These gentlemen are in charge of the experiments which the government is about to make as to the practicability of producing rain by the firing of explosives in the upper strata of the air They were accompanied by Mr Ranneils, manager of the Nelson Morris ranch at Midland for where the experiments will be made The party had with them all the material necessary for producing all the rainfall needed if the experiments pan out

THE G A R Encampment

Detroit Mich, Aug 7—At the opening of the G A. R. encampment this morning the first business was the report of committee on John A Logan and Philip Sheridan monuments. The Logan monument fund now reaches about $65,000 and is closed. For the Sheridan they have $20,000 in hand

Governor Oglesby of Illinois, reported satisfactory progress for committee on the Memorial hall at Decatur, Ill.

The reports of committe on adjutant general's and other officials' reports was approved

Post-commander-in-chief Burdette of Washington, presented reports on a variety of topics of interest to comrades in particular the action of members in endeavoring to secure the influence of the organization toward any interference in matters belonging to the various departments of the government by the G A. R. The same committee reported adversely on a communication from the Secretary of Veterans desiring closer connection with the G. A. R.

An amendment to the rules and regulations was adopted by which posts can change their location by a two-thirds vote of the members An amendment was also adopted permitting department encampments to be held as late as July. The amendment permitting the election of department officers in December was defeated The attempt to change the rules so as to read "Those who did not voluntarily bear arms against the United States are entitled to membership in the G. A. R." was defeated The per capita tax which up to-day was established at three cents, to-day per will be two cents.

The grand officers were then installed by Post-commander-in-chief Booth of Philadelphia. Commander-in-chief Veazey read over the command of the Grand Army of the Republic to Commander-in-chief-elect Palmer, and presented the new head of the organization a new flag and said: "I present you the new flag of the Grand Army of the Republic [cheers]. We have marched under our old flag now for a quarter of a century, and if it is so worn that it is not safe to use it any longer, and on the silver anniversary of our order that new one has been obtained. I give it into your hands to be guarded as for twenty-five years the old one has been guarded by your predecessors I am sure it will be safe in your hands because behind you will be 600,000 men who will stand by you and by this flag" [cheers].

In response the new commander in chief said:

"Comrades, let me briefly say I accept this office with a heart of gratitude to the comrades who have chosen me for this high position, and I hope that when I have reached the end of my term of office I may leave as clean a record behind me as the comrade who has served you during the past year." [Cheers.]

The committee appointed to take action on the death of General Sherman, Admiral Porter and Vice-president Hannibal Hamlin and Past-commander Charles Devins, reported appropriate resolutions.

The council of administration met this morning, and transacted some routine business. The annual salaries and expenses were voted the same as last year and an appropriation was made for the keeping in repair the cottage at Mt. McGregor.

After the usual resolutions to the encampment's affairs the Twenty-fifth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic was adjourned until the encampment at Washington in 1892.

NATIONAL COUNCIL.

The national council of administration of the G A. R. has been elected, Colorado and Wyoming is represented by John B. Cooke of Greeley.

Indian Improvement.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The acting commissioner of Indian affairs has received a letter from Superintendent Collins at Keam's canon, Arizona territory, stating that the Oribas Indians request that their children might leave the school to witness some important religious ceremonies. Permission was given the children and every one returned to school as they promised. Some of the parents of the children were recently in arms against the superintendent and had to be subdued by General McCook's forces. The superintendent believes the immediate return of the children quite significant as showing that no bad feeling exists among them.

Defending the Railway Sandwich

Chicago, Aug. 7.—On a bill filed in the circuit court by Fred Harvey, Judge Drake has issued an injunction restraining the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad company from running dining cars upon its lines west of the Missouri river covered by contract with him. Harvey represents that the plant now controlled by his lunch system covers from 2300 to 3500 miles of road and has cost him $150,000. The railroad people claim that the contract does not deter them from putting on dining cars and will move for a dissolution of the injunction.

Storm in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 7.—A heavy storm, accompanied by severe thunder and lightning, passed over this province last night. Several fatalities are reported. Mrs. Davis was instantly killed at Moose Jaw and a woman named Martin at Morden.

NATURAL GAS.

It Announces Its Presence In Mesa County

A HILL THROWN AT A TRAIN

A Mysterious Explosion Causes a Landslide A Passenger Train Hurled from the Track but No Lives Lost

Denver Aug 7 A wild passenger train on the Rio Grand was wrecked at an early hour this morning but by a miracle none of the passengers were hurt The engine tender was thrown from the track and the mail car and engine were badly wrecked

A thousand pounds of powder exploded a mile and a quarter east of De Beque when the train had just entered a deep cut A terrific explosion was heard and the next instant the earth for nearly a quarter of a mile slid down upon the railroad track and struck the rapidly moving train with fearful force The passengers hardly had time to wonder what caused the explosion when the land slide occurred. The instant the moving earth struck the cars they were thrown off the track The engine and mail car caught the full force of the slide and were badly wrecked, but the passenger coaches were only thrown over on their sides and they sustained very little damage

A scene of indescribable confusion followed the accident. The passengers were thrown about in all directions As soon as the cars lay still, frightened men and women made their way out, screaming and yelling with terror

On account of the wreck occurring in a cut it was impossible to build a track around the wrecked train. A gang of men were at once set to work to clear out the cut, which was accomplished this evening

De Beque is 423 miles from this city and is close to Grand Junction The officials in this city are puzzled as to what caused the gas explosion and as to what kind of gas it was.

RAILROAD VALUATIONS

The State Board of Equalization Fixes the Values.

Yesterday Clerk Hubbard received from Secretary Estabrook the assessment of the railroads and telegraph companies lying in this city as fixed by the state board of equalization for the present year These valuations in full property in this state belonging to railway companies including right of way roadbed side tracks bridges culverts fences snow sheds ties, lines material tools rolling stock shops tanks depots turning tables, platforms. The county assessor, however fixes the values on real estate owned by the companies not used for railroad purposes which will be added to the amount The figures this year are $25,000 lower than last but we have the added valuation of the coal road this year For many years the counties of the state have been agitating the Pullman Palace Car company, but the company has refused to pay the debt A suit has been decided against the company recently in the supreme court and it will now have to pay The company owes El Paso for nearly ten years back, amounting to over $1,000. Ute Pass Paint Works.

Colorado Springs and vicinity has had reason to feel very proud of its glass works plant in the past year, as the leading manufacturing industry of the county. Another manufactory at Colorado City has done considerable in the past year as the Ute Pass Paint company, and the way in which it is pushing, out will soon cause the glass company to look to its laurels as the leading industry. The company is now backed by men of large capital and business experience, as a glance at the list of officers given below will show, and on September 1st will occupy new factories. Its future is very bright

The annual meeting was held on Thursday and the following officers were elected: Ward Hunt, president; A. L. Humphreys, vice president; J. B. Glover, secretary, H. S. Worcester, general manager, J. B. Wheeler, Ward Hunt, F. W. Sells, J. B. Glover, A. L. Humphreys, directors.

It was voted to increase the capital stock from $50,000 to $150,000.

The Omaha Strike.

Omaha Neb., Aug. 7 —There is practically no change in the strike situation in any of the trades, but at a meeting of the smelter employes this morning it was made plain that unless the company came to terms soon, there would be trouble in the Denver branch of the institution John Quinn, one of the agitators, in a speech to the workmen, said "They will hear something drop in Denver in a few days They pretend in calling this a strike. It is not a strike. It is a lockout, but we say that it is a strike, why, we will just let them have one in good earnest I am now in correspondence with some of the labor organizations in Denver, and I promise you that the Omaha and Grant Smelting company at Denver will hear something drop pretty soon if this lockout continues in Omaha"

A Thoughtful Warning

Washington, Aug 7.—The secretary of the treasury has been advised that a bold attempt will be made during the present month to rob the treasury by a strong and determined band of men organized for the purpose. The plan is to start fires in various parts of the city for the purpose of diverting the attention of the police and then to overpower the treasury watchmen and loot the money vaults. The information was given in a letter signed by the "King of the Tramps," who explained his knowledge of the plot by the statement that he was the leader of the band. The letter was referred to the captain of the watch with instructions to give the visitors a proper reception.

Corralling the Lunatics.

Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 7.—One more of the nine fugitives who escaped from the state asylum yesterday was captured near Cayuga village at 4 o'clock this morning. The convict's name was Albert Dominy. He has sulked about the western limits of the city until nightfall when he stole a horse hitched in a farmer's wagon about two miles from town Sheriff Keeler and Policeman Malon and Greasry started in pursuit and over hauled the fugitive after an exciting all night chase.

Still another was captured later, leaving only one at large

An Express Train Wrecked.

Pittsburg, Aug 7 —The New York and Chicago limited express on the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne and Chicago railroad due here at 7 o'clock this morning, was wrecked near East Palestine, Ohio, fifty miles west of this city.

Engineer William Carney, of East Palestine, Ohio, and Fireman Isaac Richey, of Allegheny, Penn., were instantly killed, but as far as known here now no passengers were hurt.

The express ran into an open switch and crashed into a freight train standing on a siding The engine was completely wrecked, the combination car turned over and the first sleeper thrown from the tracks. Five cars were demolished

THE SUNDAY GAZETTE.

The Gateway to the Garden of the Gods has always been, and still remains one of the most prominent features of Colorado scenery. There has been no better picture among the hundreds that have been taken of the gateway than the one which will be reproduced in to-morrow's GAZETTE art supplement. This picture like others in the series is of a superior class as regards finish and work and its subject will make it especially popular.

The literary features will include: A new short story by Conan Doyle, the writer of detective stories who has recently acquired so great a reputation. It is entitled "The Red-Headed League."

Bill Nye wrestles with the English critic, Hamilton Aide, and champions the social merits of the United States in general and Colorado Springs in particular. It need hardly be said that Nye is a sure winner.

The subject of Roland Blathwayt's interview this week is George DuMaurier, the great English caricaturist, whose drawings in Punch have come to be regarded as photographs of English society.

Among other articles are: "Dashing Earl Van Dorn," by Geo. L. Kilmer; "Stocked with Game," by James L. Ford, and an interesting article on London's great fish market at Billingsgate.

HELPING THE CITY.

It would be a good thing for all the people of this city if the contract for the new High school building were let soon. There can be no doubt about the need of the new building both for High school purposes and to accommodate the overflow from the other schools. The arguments used at the time that this matter was discussed have lost none of their force and now that the bonds have been voted the natural thing to do is to proceed with the erection of the building. With all diligence it can hardly be used in next year's sessions and much more delay will inevitably result in throwing the completion over until 1893 or even later.

Besides this, if the building is to be carried on during the winter, it is necessary to begin it now, in order that it may be closed in before the coldest weather comes. One hundred thousand dollars expended here will go a good way toward making the winter season a prosperous one. One thousand tourists spending $100 each would be worth making a serious effort to get, and the benefit from this building will be nearly as great. Everyone knows it is a good thing to have money spent here. Everyone knows it is a good thing to have all the mechanics in the city employed, to have them each week receiving good wages, and making trade for the retail merchants.

We assume two things: First, that Colorado Springs contractors will make reasonable bids, offering to do the work at as low a price as good, honest work can be done with good material by good workmen. Second, that under these circumstances the contract will be let to Colorado Springs contractors and the work done by Colorado Springs workmen.

The board certainly should not feel justified in making an extravagant contract merely on account of the prejudice in favor of Colorado Springs. But there is work can be done here and ought to be done here. We owe nothing to Denver, and it is quite enough that her architects have furnished the design. If Denver contractors get the contract, Denver merchants will furnish the supplies, the hardware, glass and most of the other material; a large part of the shop work will be done in Denver, the planing, molding, turning, etc. Even if it would cost a few hundred dollars less it would be a poor plan to go to Denver for master mechanics, to allow that pretentious capital to overwhelm our local industry, and make us contribute to a prosperity which has already been too much developed at the expense of the rest of the state.

The work should be done by Colorado Springs workmen. Men working here will spend most of their wages here, wherever they come from. But there is no benefit in importing one hundred wage-earners and wage spenders, to drive out one hundred who already live here. On the contrary, there is harm in it. Denver men working here send their wages to their homes, they have no interest in helping us in their work or in their industry, they do not pay our taxes, they do not belong to our societies, they do not support our churches and schools, and when the work is done they will return with their savings whence they came. Why should they be favored at the expense of our home building Colorado Springs workmen? The work, too, should be done by good workmen, men who are paid a fair price for their labor, who know how and can afford to do good work. We want no handsome building merely, dishonestly built by ignorant or shirking workmen. Colorado Springs pays for this building, Colorado Springs will use it. Let Colorado Springs build it!

There has already been a good deal of talk in the matter, but we believe that the school board are quite disposed to look after the local interests, and expect they will do the right thing for all concerned.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. James R. Gudo.

Writing on the recent International Council of Congregationalists in London, the Observer (Pres.) says: "Whatever may be the comparative advantages of one or another church polity in the way of Christian culture or Christian work, the history of Congregationalism in America, with its...quoiade in our own land and in foreign lands, has demonstrated the folly of that kind of criticism which once treated it as a rope of sand, predestinated by its very constitution to weakness and decay of faith. To this hour, after a century of toil, struggle, development, and triumph, it holds its own nobly among the most highly organized churches for purity of doctrine and active usefulness. Its ministers and people are as faithful to the evangelical truths of the Reformed Confessions as those of churches which are controlled by the most elaborate ecclesiastical systems, and which have no public worship that is not liturgical. In the great Baptist and Congregational communions, the world has a noble demonstration of the inherent strength of evangelical religion to maintain itself and work aggressively without the aid of external authorities, organizations, and formularies. We do not in the least depreciate the advantages of any of these things in their respective spheres, but we rejoice to see and know that what is most precious in the religion of Christ is not dependent on any of these things for its power and prosperity."

At the Unitarian anniversaries in Boston this year Minot Savage told this good story. He said, "My friend Baldwin, who is here somewhere to-night, told me a story once of taking his little boy on his lap, and saying, among other things, 'I want you to be a better boy, and a better man, than your father has been'; and the little boy surprised his father by the remark that he intended to be."

Perhaps there is no criminal offense, the ordinary punishment of which is so much of a farce as drunkenness. It is the most common offense and the penalties for it are probably the most inadequate and ineffectual. Within the last few years they have been giving a good deal of attention in Massachusetts to improving, if possible, penal legislation along this line. Drunkenness in Massachusetts furnishes 65 per cent. of all the arrests made in the state and a third of the entire population of the minor prisons. "One of the most important things to do with this great number of offenders," says the Christian Register, "is to distinguish between those which are habitual and those which are primary or occasional offenses. For habitual cases a long commitment to an inebriate penal hospital may be the only remedy. Accordingly a law was passed two years ago providing for the commitment of such offenders to an institution now building where they may be detained two years with some hope of their reformation.

In first offenses, putting the offender on probation seems the better plan. The probation system has been a gradual growth in Massachusetts. It has worked well with juvenile offenders and in Boston has worked well with adults. Other cities and towns have had the privilege of employing such officers but they have not availed themselves of it. The new law makes it mandatory; and the salaries instead of being paid by the city and town are paid by the county treasurers. In the last twelve years the value of such a method has been abundantly proven.

It may be added that during the last year the secretary of the association, Mr. W. F. Spalding, and the committee on penal legislation, have given a thorough study to the question of the system of punishment for drunkenness in this state. The report of the prison commission shows that during the last year there were 58,000 arrests for drunkenness in Massachusetts, and of this number more than 23,500 persons were committed to prison for the non-payment of fines for drunkenness. Many of this large number ought never to have gone to prison, and many others ought not to have come out at the expiration of thirty days. The framing of a new law to modify some of the evils of the present system was undertaken. Under the old system the gin mill tazed the man for the privilege of making him drunk, and then the court fined the man because he was not sober. His pocket was usually empty, and so he was sent to prison because he could not pay his fine. When the fine was paid, the cost of it often came out of the earnings of his hard-working wife. The fine on the person was thus, in most cases, a tax on the family. It was a system which neither prevented drunkenness nor effected the reform of the drunkard. The advocates of the new system do not expect to accomplish both of these things, for the millennium has not yet come. The law has been made simply to meet practical necessities and to remedy evident defects of the present system.

The new law abolishes the fine as a penalty for drunkenness, and substitutes imprisonment in all cases. It gives the court power to discriminate between different individuals. Under the old system there was little or no discrimination. The fine for a simple drunk was five dollars; the alternative, imprisonment for thirty days. In the analysis and exposition of the new law, Mr. Spalding, the secretary of the Massachusetts Prison association, points out the fallacy of the idea that the imprisonment was in any way an equivalent for the fine. Certainly it was not so to the state, and not so to the man. The evils of the fine system in other respects are likewise indicated. There may be cases where the direct imposition of a fine, if sufficiently heavy, is the best way of protecting society and punishing those who disturb its order. But there is danger of abuse when the fine is either nominal, so that it really constitutes no punishment, where it is so heavy as to be oppressive, or when imprisonment is made an alternative. It become a decided discrimination between rich and poor. As Mr. Spalding truly says: "Hereafter, when a person is imprisoned, it will be because the court thinks a certain term of confinement is needed or deserved, and not because he is too poor to pay the fine. Drunkenness and not poverty will be the offense for which he is imprisoned."

Attention is further called to the enormous expense of the fine system. Other features of the law are the large discretion it gives to courts, and the provision which is made for the careful examination of those arrested for this offense. This is certainly one of the best features of the new law. A great danger in penal administration is that the courts get to working like so many machines. The supply of drunkards is steady, and they are run through the courts in a perfunctory way. In hundreds of cases the best thing to do may be to send a man home. This liberty has been exercised by the police. But the temptation to bribery and corruption is apparent when the arresting officer is allowed to make the release. The new law vests this power in the officer in charge of the station, not in the officer making the arrest. It requires a record of each case to which a person is released. The right to be released is limited to those who declare that they have not been arrested for drunkenness twice before within a year. Doubtful cases will go to the courts. The judgment which forms the basis of release must be investigated afterward by the probation officer. If the officer in charge of the station declines to make this release, the person may appeal to the court. The judge then has the advantage of the investigation by the probation officer. He may be discharged with or without a trial, may be placed on probation, or may be committed as a habitual drunkard if he is found to be such.

The Rev. Alfred Young of the Paulist Fathers (Roman Catholic) thus sums up in the Independent the results of nine months' missions by six of the fathers in the cities and larger towns of our country

Ninety thousand, nine hundred and thirty souls brought face to face with God:

To consider their salvation in final union with him as the all in all:

To meditate upon his divine majesty, power, truth and righteous judgments, his infinite love shown in their creation, Christian vocation, providential care and gifts of nature and grace:

To pour out fervent, devout prayers and unite themselves for several days together with the church's solemn acts of divine worship:

To review, in the sight of God, their past lives, their sins of omission and commission;

To conceive a great and hearty sorrow for all their sins and a firm determination to abandon them and live better lives.

To ask God's pardon with contrite hearts and with full and humble confession.

To enjoy the unspeakable comfort of hearing the assuring words: "Go in peace, thy sins are forgiven thee;"

To receive, with the profoundest sentiments of reverence and joy, the body and blood of Christ in holy communion.

To have the soul brought to be at peace with God and one's neighbor; all enmities put away; restitution of all wrongs made; the family skeleton burned out of sight; wife and children radiant with happiness over father's reformation, many and many a home feasting over the despaired-of return of a prodigal son; the tainted social atmosphere cleared of scandal, of anger and disappointment, of envy and jealousy; the sunshine of Christian obedience to law and order, and of contentment with the decrees of divine Providence shed abroad in many a sin-angered heart; a cheerful taking up of one's cross, be it bodily suffering, or poverty, or hard labor, or trials that may not be shaken off or loosened.

WESTERN BREVITIES.

A gentleman of Nebraska, Neb., died the other day from the effects produced by his swallowing his false teeth about three weeks ago while eating his dinner.

The Buena Vista opera house has been bought by W. R. Logan.

The Star Publishing company of Pueblo, have filed articles of incorporation with a capital stock of $50,000. J. W. Jackson will be president and general manager.

William H. H. Lammer, the son of Gen. William Lammer, for whom one of Denver's streets, and one of Colorado's counties is named, arrived in Denver the other day after an absence of twenty-five years. When 17 years of age he was one of the first residents of the then newly founded city of Denver, and lived in the first house erected in that city when the 58ers lived on game, dried apples and corn, and four round trips for the mail were made through the winter.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Sketches of the Men Who Go Out and of Those Who Come In.

Politicians of all shades were thrown into quite a buzz by the proceedings of the recent meeting at Washington of the Republican national executive committee, and the great point of interest was the resignation of Senator Mathew Stanley Quay from the chairmanship and General William Wade Dudley from the treasurership. The reluctance of the committee to accept these resignations was great, and the resolutions of thanks and confidence sincere, for both have been remarkably efficient as party workers. Mr. James S. Clarkson, of Iowa, succeeds as chairman, and the probabilities are that Mr. Henry C. Payne, of Wisconsin, will serve through 1892 as treasurer.

SENATOR QUAY.

The political life of these four gentlemen is a large part of the history of the Republican party, and when the full national committee meets in November the new officials will probably enter at once on a year of activity. Matthew S. Quay was born in Dillsburg, York county, Pa., Sept. 30, 1833, and has been identified with that section all his life. He was graduated from Jefferson college in 1850, admitted to the bar in 1854, and after holding various minor offices was elected to the legislature in 1864, 1865 and 1866. He was twice state secretary and once state treasurer, and in 1887 was chosen United States senator for the term to end March 4, 1893.

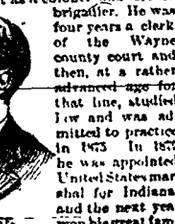
W. W. DUDLEY.

Senator Quay served but a short time in the Federal army, but General Dudley's fame is almost purely military. He was born Aug 27, 1842, at Weathersfield, Vt., and located in Richmond, Ind., as a miller in 1900. He enlisted on the first call for troops, entered active service as a captain and by conspicuous gallantry and the loss of a leg came out as a colonel and brevet brigadier. He was four years a clerk of the Wayne county court and then, at a rather advanced age for that line, studied law and was admitted to practice in 1873. In 1879 he was appointed United States marshal for Indiana, and the next year won his great fame in 1881 he was appointed commissioner of pensions at Washington, but resigned in 1882 to become a pension agent and claims attorney.

H. C. PAYNE.

His probable successor, Mr Henry C Payne, of Wisconsin, is popularly spoken of as "the most adroit of western politicians," which is praise indeed, as the west, and Wisconsin especially, has some that are phenomenally adroit. He has piloted his party in Wisconsin through many victorious campaigns, and, according to those who know him best, "can detect the fluctuations of the public pulse even before the public itself knows that there is a fluctuation."

Mr. James S Clarkson won fame as editor of the Iowa State Register and then became brilliantly conspicuous as assistant postmaster general of the United States, in which place he was credited with having "cut off 40,000 heads." He was born May 17, 1842, in Brockville, Ind., and at the age of fourteen went to Iowa with a common school education and some knowledge of typesetting. He became a good printer, then editorial writer and finally proprietor with his brother, of The Register. He is a "hustler from away back," as they say in some sections, and likewise a "get there, Eli."



J. S. CLARKSON

The highest trestle on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad is that across the Cornican defile, about twelve miles west of Missoula, Mon. The track level is exactly 800 feet 9 inches above the rocks in the gorge below.

FAMOUS AS A STORY WRITER

An Appreciative Sketch of the Life and Work of James Lane Allen.

During the past half dozen years a score of brilliant writers have sprung up in the south. One of the latest to attract attention, and one of the most gifted, is James Lane Allen, who was born several years before the outbreak of the civil war, near Lexington, Ky., where the generations of his family had lived since the time of the first emigration from Virginia. On his father's side he is descended from Colonel William Payne, an officer of the Revolution, on his mother's side from Pennsylvania Scotch Irish stock. The early years of his life were passed on the small farm which was his birthplace. He had few companions and was much alone with nature. The effect of this communing is easily discernible in all of his work. He was first taught by his mother, and at an early age he read many of the best books extant. Later he entered Kentucky university, at Lexington, which was the first college of note founded west of the Alleghenies. Having graduated at the head of his class, he took up a post graduate course and received the degree of master of arts. It was his first intention to fit himself for a professorship of the Latin or Greek language, and he had as a possible final aim the teaching of the science of comparative philology.

After acting as tutor in several American colleges, however he gave up academic life and began to write. The success of the touching tales he has told are laid in Kentucky, and the period of which he treats is generally that which is known as "before the war." He describes the agriculturists of the blue grass section as being "a cross between the bucolic and the aristocratic, as gentle as shepherds and as proud as kings, and not seldom exhibiting among both men and women types of character which were as remarkable for pure, tender, noble states of feeling as they were commonplace in powers and cultivation of mind." Mr. Allen first attracted attention by several beautifully written articles describing the Trappist Monastery, Gethsemane, and his subsequent romances, "The White Cowl" and "Sister Dolorosa," founded upon material obtained while investigating the convent and monastic life.

Speaking of the motives of his work recently, Mr. Allen said: "My literary aim in writing the articles descriptive of life and nature in Kentucky has been to train my eye to see, my hand to report, things as they were, as a preparation for imaginative work, which I hoped in time would follow, and the result of my first experiments in the field of Kentucky fiction is embodied in the collection now published under the title of 'Flute and Violin.' It is always of service to know the relation in which a writer stands to his own work, and I am frank to declare that I look upon these tales as so many pieces of wreckage, for I have written them in the face of a storm of obstacles. Some day I hope to come into port with richer cargo, and from longer, calmer voyages."

Mr. Allen is a charming man to meet. He is a brilliant conversationist and a ripe scholar. He has been giving a series of readings through the south lately with great success. He left his old Kentucky home to live in New York, but is now a resident of Cincinnati.

GEORGE H. YENOWINE.

A Young Woman's Triumph.

Another member of the so called weaker sex has just distinguished herself. The friendly prize of $800 offered by the Cobden club to the Victoria university at Manchester for the best essay on an economic question has been awarded to Miss Victorine Jeans for an essay on the "industrial and commercial effects, actual and prospective, of the English factory act legislation." This is the first Cobden club university prize that has been taken by a woman.

Gordon-Cumming's Beautiful Bride.

Lady William Gordon-Cumming was Miss Florence Josephine Garner, of New York, and bravely married the baronet immediately after the conclusion of the late carat trial in which he fared so badly. She is the second wife of an extremely independent race. Her father was the late Mr William Garner, and her mother was Miss Marcellite Thorne, a famous beauty of Louisiana. She was a bright brunette, but her daughter is a clear and ruddy blond, with fair hair, full gray eyes and a small chin.

Mr. and Mrs. Garner, her only brother and three friends were drowned by the foundering of their yacht, and three Gar ner girls were left orphans. The oldest, then but eight, is now the Marquise de Breteuil. Florence was then six, and the third, then a baby, is a young lady of seventeen. Mr Garner left a fortune of some millions, which greatly increased before the two older daughters came of age. They were reared by their aunt, Mrs. Lawrence, whose daughter is now the wife of Lord Vernon. If wealth, beauty and noble connections are any consolation Sir William is certainly consoled.

How to Tell Whether a Fabric Is "All Wool."

Put a piece of the cloth into a solution of caustic soda in a glass vessel and boil it. The wool will dissolve. If cotton is a part of the structure it will remain undissolved. If a woolen and cotton fabric be dipped in bleaching liquor the former will turn yellow after awhile and the cotton will remain white. In a fabric composed of wool, silk and cotton the threads of the last burn freely and leave little charcoal, while those of the first two shrivel, leave a black charcoal and give a strong smell when burned.

How to Cure Stings of Insects.

When stung by a bee, wasp or mosquito immediately plunge the affected part into or bathe with salt and water. If this is not available make a paste of some clay and water and apply it to the sting. Bathing with laudanum, hartshorn or camphorated spirits is also useful. Should a bee or wasp be swallowed dissolve a teaspoonful of table salt in water and drink it. This will immediately kill the insect and prevent the sting inflaming your throat. Should a sting become very painful and inflamed the blood must be in a bad state and it is well to take a strong purgative and refrain from animal food for a few days.

Something for "Home Folks."

WHILE you are living in beautiful Colorado, enjoying its climate, drinking in its magnificent scenery, and reaping the benefits of life in a model city like Colorado Springs, does it never occur to you that the friends LEFT AT HOME do not half understand what you have and they are missing. Letters filled with descriptions are interesting, but they do not convey the impressions of the life of the people as does a good READABLE PAPER. One dollar and fifty cents will buy the Weekly Gazette mailed to any postoffice in the United States. Why not send it as a complement to your letters?

The Weekly Gazette is SPECIALLY PREPARED for persons living outside of Colorado Springs, and who cannot receive the Daily every morning. A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO

There settled in Baker county, Oregon, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become identified with the resources and development of that country. This man is one other than Mr. John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says: "I had been suffering from pains in my back and general kidney complaint for some time, and had used many remedies without any but temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and could not move about without the use of a cane. Hearing, through a friend, of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try a box, and from that very first dose I found instant relief, and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back entirely disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."

Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, incontinence of urine, brick dust sediment, burning or painful sensation while urinating, and all affections of the kidney or urinary organs of either sex.

THE PECOS VALLEY.

THE FRUIT BELT OF NEW MEXICO

Over 100 miles of irrigating canals now completed, each from 15 to 60 feet wide and carrying 4 to 6 feet of water.

Over 300,000 acres of the richest lands in the world already available for irrigation and farming under these canals, twenty-five per cent. of which are still subject to entry under the homestead laws.

The Pecos Valley lands for sale at $10 to $30 an acre and on easy terms.

The Pecos River being fed by never-failing springs of immense size, the water supply for all the canals of Tennessee can be increased. In this respect the Pecos is unequaled for irrigating purposes by any river on the continent.

Climatic and soil conditions here are superior to those of Southern California. All the fruits of any known zone can be produced here, even oranges and lemons, while the Pecos Valley is equally favorable for vegetables and grasses that can be grown anywhere on this continent.

Cotton, tobacco and hemp also grow here perfectly, while the neighboring mines afford a home market for all products.

Direct and easy rail communication with the North and East.

Y AND INTERESTING GOSSIP OUT THE MAINE STATESMAN

Editorial and Theatrical Aspirations. w He Drifted Into Politics—His y Quest for Music A Long Visit to a alking Match right 1891 by American Press Association.

UST before Mr Blaine was nominated for the presidency in 1884 the writer met a gentleman who for many years has been the publisher and owner of the Portland Daily Advertiser This is a paper which has always been influential in d and vicinity and it was with this r that Mr Blaine not long after he to Maine from Pennsylvania became ted in a subordinate capacity He was yed by the proprietor to do general and was expected to turn his hand thing from the writing of an editoi the penning of a local puff After I served in that capacity for a year Mr Bliss left these editorial duties rely to his liking At that time termined to make it his life business r as his associates in The Advertiser were concerned while they realized Mr Blaine possessed an exceedingly h intellect, and grasped by intuition ly what others would acquire only patient labor, yet it seemed to none ion that he had any idea whatever premonition so to speak of the distinct career which he was to make. was interested in politics but appar no more so than any other newspaper editor who does his work well

Blaine's salary which was once d after his first employment on that r was when he left the paper twelve lred dollars a year He thought he ld receive more he said that it was ossible for him to support his family hat sum but that he could do it very ly on fifteen hundred dollars a year save a little each year His employer not want to lose him and at the same e he felt that he could not afford to pay much money as Mr Blaine wanted e was considerable negotiation between them, but it came to nothing and Blaine determined to resign and go to usta, where his wife's friends lived, see if he could not do better for him

Thus it happened that Mr Blaine me the editor and part owner of a kly paper in Augusta and thus he had ortunity to take personal interest in itics, to secure an election to the legisture, where, after a few months' service became, of a sudden almost, conscious his remarkable capabilities He was able tend to his newspaper business and to political duties as well, as his paper published at the state capital and it only issued once a week. It is an interesting matter for speculation to think t Mr Blaine a career might have been his employer in Portland agreed to his est and kept him on that paper for e years as an assistant editor Of se the genius that is in him would asserted itself sooner or later; but its lopment might have taken an entirely rent course had he remained in Portland.

Blaine's career as a statesman is the ord of his efforts — a politician of extraordinary influence in political ngagement was developed very soon after ntered politics, and it is due partly to al and enthusiasm which were some g phenomenal, at least in the experi of Maine politicians A political cam n with Mr Blaine in Maine had all elements of a great battle. He was rman of the state committee of his r for many years, and the work which d in that capacity was frequently phenomenal. On one occasion, when a desperate battle was being fought in Maine, the Greenback party seemed likely to re supremacy, it was the fortune of writer to see Mr Blaine as the manager of a campaign. He was probably the ubiquitous man who ever took part in politics He would be seen one moon in Portland, and perhaps the next morning would be heard from in the most part of the state. He was in Lincolnville county one day and Penobscot ty the next he descended upon the coast here and there with the celerity of the god of the Assyrians He was no headquarters manager he carried his headquarters in a hat and his head. He would spend ole night in a compartment of a sleeping car dictating correspondence, analyzing reports studying the weak places in the lines and the strong places in the s and making drafts upon his re ces which were always met. He was ergetic and yet tactful he ruled with ch as necessary, and with velvet when ssible He was utterly without self nsciousness. Not a trace of that deadly m for a politician which is called g feel was apparent in his manner rwhelming personality, that very which afterward made him so con ous in national affairs was perhaps r afterward so splendidly made manifest His theory of politics was the theory th general in battle, and that is that must be won at all hazards short t of dishonor. He once said that politics a gratitude, but that it was power. n the most perfect epigrammatic tion of the science of politics r ever made. It was such management as ept up long after he had become a al figure and even a presidential ity that distinguished Mr Blaine ical manager No man has ever ed him in this direction

t is generally known that Mr Blaine passionately fond of music, but in his s this disposition has long been recognized and catered to One of the most ble illustrations of it occurred a few s ago at the Fifth Avenue hotel, in w York city Mr Blaine had just come Washington and had been assigned the apartments in that hotel which are always reserved for him In the office of hotel there were gathered many men of fame who had come to call upon him cards were sent up, but to none of them did Mr Blaine grant an audience. He said he was not in the mood for talking politics or business with any one Could he have seen him in the corridors below there were those who would have been glad to have had him actions would have dispelled any suspicions regarding his state of health

A young lady a member of the family party who was quite a pianist was in his private parlor and Mr Blaine having given orders to admit no one excepting members of his family tripped across the parlor floor with the exuberance of a boy playful as a kitten, and seizing the young lady gently actually waltzed or danced with an impromptu step with her to the piano "Now," said he, I want some music a good solid hour of it and first of all I want you to play me that goose or turkey song from the opera of 'The Mascotte'" It was a melody of which Mr Blaine was very fond The young woman played it over and he clapped and shouted Encore! encore! and she had to play it again Then she took up the other melodies of that opera and so for an hour she delighted this wonderful man with these simple little songs.

He snatched up an evening paper after the impromptu concert was ended and turning to the amusement announcements of a sudden bounded into the center of the floor, shouted 'Hurrah,' and said They are going to sing 'The Mascotte' at the theater this evening and we'll go all hands.' And two or three hours later Mr Blaine and his party were in a box at the theater, he being concealed by the curtains and his delight was as great as that of a child with the performance. Yet the next morning the papers announced that Mr Blaine had been holding a secret political conference somewhere in the city that evening He had not seen a politician all that day or evening.

Mr Blaine is very fond of the theater, and his tendency is toward high comedy although he does not disdain a genuine rollicking farce. He was a great admirer of John T Raymond a representation of Colonel Mulberry Sellers, and never failed to see and hear it when it was possible to do so. Joe Jefferson as Bob Acres always had a chance for him but he did not care so much for Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle Mr Blaine a family, or some members of it, say that there have been times in his life when he almost wished that he had made the stage his profession Of course such desire was never seriously entertained by him, but he has always felt that if chance had brought him to the stage he would have made a great reputation as an actor One time while speaking of this he said in joke, "Some of my would be friends assert that I am acting all the time, and if I could do so well with the world for my stage, why shouldn't I do well in the play houses?"

Mr Blaine is no great admirer of athletic sports and he has been amused that some of our public men have confessed to a stalwart for reading accounts of great prize fights. He likes to drive, but cares nothing for racing or for a speedy horse. But there was one sport, which for a time was a phenomenal craze in New York, which attracted his attention. He was in the city at the time of one of the earlier six day walking matches when New York city even its most staid professional men became fevered with that frenzy

Mr. Blaine's curiosity was excited, and having some leisure moments he strolled across Madison square and entered the building where this curious display was going on expecting to stay but a few moments. He stood in a dark, obscure corner of the building and watched young Rowell and O'Leary, the American champion and the other leggard walkers and runners as he supposed for about half an hour But on looking at his watch he found that he had been there nearly three hours, and had missed an important appointment at the hotel. He never could explain what the fascination was which held him stood to the spot, but he did not feel very guilty, for he saw distinguished men whom he knew under the same spell as he himself was at that time. It was the only exhibition of athletic sports which he ever witnessed in New York city.

Minneapolis Larger Than Paris.

The existing Paris covers 19,275 acres, or about thirty square miles, while metropolitan London, with 4,000,000 population contains 118 square miles, and Chicago provides an area about as extensive for 1,100,000. The average distance from the center of Paris to the circumference is only three miles. Minneapolis, with only 165,000 people, has a municipal area more than twice as large as that of Paris. Almost the entire population of Paris is housed in the flats of tenement structures averaging from four to five stories in height.

According to the revised figures of the census of 1886 there were nearly 75,000 houses in Paris, and the average number of people in a house was about thirty. In the old aristocratic quarters of the inner Paris there are probably about 30,000 houses accommodating about 1,000,000 people.

For a total contrast in the plan of house construction we have only to cross the channel and to examine London where we find an average of about eight persons to a house for the whole metropolis. But the people of Paris are better housed, all things considered, than those of London A population of 2,500,000 within a circle whose radius is only three miles is certainly very dense but it must be remembered that Paris is a many storied city.—Dr Albert Shaw in Century

Way His Salary Was Not Raised

"Yes," said the gray haired, kindly looking old man thoughtfully, "I thought of promoting James and increasing his salary He has been here a long time and has been exceedingly faithful but I'm afraid I can't do it. Poor boy! His family physician says that he has some heart trouble, and that any surprise or undue excitement would kill him"

"Is it as bad as that?" asked the cashier

"Indeed it is," responded the gray haired old man with a sigh "I'm sorry for the poor lad, but I don't see what I can do."

"Well, if he's doomed to an early grave," said the cashier slowly "the least we can do is to see that he dies happy"

"Yes that's all there is left," acquiesced the proprietor

"And from what I know of James," continued the cashier, "he couldn't die a happier death than one caused by promotion and an increase of salary"

"Do you really think so?" asked the kindly old man futuristically. "I'd like to do a nice thing for James."

"Oh, I'm sure of it. If it killed him he'd die with a smile on his lips, perfectly happy and at peace with the world"

The old man roused himself after a moment's thought, slowly shook his head and said:

"No. I'd like to do the proper thing for James, but I haven't much confidence in that doctor I'm afraid he doesn't know his business. We'll let it go for the p[resent]." Chicago Tribune

A name closely associated with that of Chautauqua from its inception is Mrs. Alden's. When women come from the far west to this famous resort the first person they wish to see after they have passed to call Bishop John Vincent is Mrs. Alden. Who is Mrs.? A sweet faced brown eyed woman known in private life as Mrs. G. R. Alden. Mrs. Alden is a well known writer of semi-religious stories and an enthusiastic Sunday school worker She conducted the first class for primary teachers of the work in Chautauqua.

She has often read original stories from the platform and in other ways has been a potent factor of this great enterprise. A C. L. S. C. class was named for her. She is the publisher of a child's paper which bears her pen name. In appearance Mrs. Alden is slight with a strong and intelligent face. She dresses plainly but always wears somewhere on her bonnet or on her breast or at her belt a knot of pansies. For sixteen years Mrs. Alden has been at work on a life of Christ which was published last year under the title The Prince of Peace This, the lady feels, is the crowning work of her life and hopes it may prove to be of more than ephemeral value.

MRS. EMILY BISHOP

When Chautauqua takes hold of any cult, it is with heart and soul The writer well remembers when one slender little woman, the embodiment of spirit, fire and dew, came, saw and conquered with Delsarteen forces Mrs. Emily Bishop teaches and lectures upon the Delsarte doctrines which are fast becoming something more potential than a mere fad Now that fashion has set her decree of approval on the study of Delsarte, we may confidently predict an epidemic of the gospel of grace.

But possibly Delsarte may be something more than a mere craze Certainly at Chautauqua, no single department is more popular or prosperous than that presided over by Mrs. Bishop It bears the mystic title of the Psycho-Physical Culture class Mrs. Bishop has all the skill of Henrietta Rowell without the eccentricities of that lady From the jumble nonsense and mysticism of Delsarte, Mrs. Bishop has taught order, beauty and grace She calls her work the "Americanized Delsarte System," saying that by Americanizing it she has simply made it of practical use to everyday people.

Those with whom the word Delsarte is synonymous with superficial reverencing an insane waving of arms, a ridiculous fashion of "making eyes" or an outlandish mode of dress should see Emily Bishop in her artistic gowns, hear and not offend the most conservative taste and hear her delightfully logical lectures on the Delsarte system She aims primarily for conservation of nervous energy, claiming that most physical and mental injuries come from misdirected powers

At Chautauqua hundreds of women—grandmothers mothers and daughters—who have been under her instruction testify to the substantial benefits derived from her teaching Insomnia is banished nervous prostration overcome, the awkward are made graceful the corpulent grow slim, the lean fat—in fine Delsarte can do anything Who knows? It may be the long sought fountain of youth Mrs. Bishop is from Washington and spends a part ahead of the year in giving lectures and drawing room talks on her work Her personality is charming and winning. Her voice is sympathetic, her manner restful and simple. She is brown haired and gray eyed and has an almost classic profile.

The only woman professor at Chautauqua is Mrs Porter McClintock The faculty is an excellent type of the American woman not as she is, but as she is to be. Mrs. McClintock is what might be termed a Twentieth century woman—what we may expect all our women to be when they shall realize the truth of the saying "Man helps but woman helps [illegible] more than [illegible] body helps Mrs McClintock possesses a superior physique and to this primarily she [illegible] her success in other lines. In an age too prone to superficial learning, a woman who is an enthusiast over Anglo-Saxon might be supposed to be a blue stocking of necessity

But when Harriet Beecher Stowe said, "If you'll mind the babies awhile I'll help the slaves," the blue stocking type began to disappear, and has continued so to do till today the old fashioned stereotyped blue stocking is nowhere to be found Any morning at Chautauqua one may find a tall superbly formed woman teaching a class how to find poetry and music in Anglo Saxon Mrs. McClintock teaches Beowulf, Chaucer and middle English After pupils read as much of Beowulf during the six weeks of the assembly as ordinary students read in a regular college year

Mrs McClintock is a native of Kentucky and was led to teach Anglo Saxon by accident A chair in a college was vacant this well educated lady was called on at short notice to fill it and so accepted ably fill also fill the position that she decided to fill—teaching of King Alfred a English as a professor She is tall slender and [illegible] an accomplished conversationalist and a clever lecturer There are two objects in Mrs McClintock's life to which she is more devoted than the study of Anglo-Saxon and those are two bright little boys.

The wood carving at Chautauqua is this year for the third season under the direction of Miss Lalita Fry Miss Fry comes from a family of wood carvers and has had a thorough training in clay modeling drawing and wood carving Miss Fry's work is famous for its originality When the Music Hall in Cincinnati was built and the great organ screen was decorated mostly by women carvers hers was the panel to receive the first award of the Springer prizes—a hundred dollars in gold in a silver purse. This panel was dedicated to Mendelssohn and was decorated with lilies suggestive of the purity of the great master's composition

Miss Fry does not confine herself to wood carving alone. Being fully equipped by a knowledge of drawing to express herself in almost any material, her fertile brain soon suggested other fields for quite as important work. Discoveries in the method of decorating pottery and the establishment of styles of decoration have been accepted as standard upon their own merit.

Originality and character are stamped upon this young woman's work. In London one day a lady stepped into Howell & James' great establishment, and seeing a bit of carving said, "That is Miss Fry's I know it." And so it proved to be Miss Fry is proud of the fact that she was born in an Indiana log cabin amid the most rural surroundings She is not a bit egotistical but is fearful as a schoolgirl.

Her eyes are clear hazel, and she is distinguished by a lock of snowy hair over the right temple.

While all these clever women are looking after the Chautauqua mentality, another bright woman is attending to the Chautauqua stomach Mrs. Emma P Ewing, who is recognized as the ablest teacher of household science in the United States, has been in charge of the school of cookery at Chautauqua for six summers, and has besides given lectures and lessons at various other summer assemblies.

Mrs. Ewing was born in New York, but has lived for a good share of her life in Kansas She became impressed that good cooking is the prime factor in the physical, moral and intellectual development of the individual. In 1880 she located in Chicago, opened a training school of cookery and conducted it in a highly satisfactory manner until 1888, when she was appointed professor of domestic economy in the Iowa Agricultural college. After that she held a similar position in Indiana university, resigning it to organize a school of household science, which is now in successful operation in Kansas City

Mrs. Ewing believes that poor cooking has driven more men to drink than all the bartenders in the country She is a common sense cook An eminent writer, who is engaged in helping the masses to better life in practical fashion spoke with righteous indignation against that condition of society "that would send a special car to convey a certain cooking teacher across the continent to teach the favored few how to prepare deviled crabs, deviled lobsters, deviled—and all sorts of devilish dishes, when the great mass of humanity were starving their bodies on indigestible bread"

Mrs. Ewing would be a joy to this writer's heart, for she is not only a good cook but an economical one. Mrs. Ewing in appearance, is an excellent specimen of good living, being plump, clear skinned and wholesome, a healthy and hearty woman.

EDITH SESSIONS TUTTLE

A Two Shilling Fate.

I sat in a little colored church congregation on Missionary Ridge one Sunday afternoon, and when the minister ascended the pulpit he said

"Dis hain't gwine to be any sermon today It's jest gwine to be to take up a collection to finish off de new meetin house Dar am various kinds of heaven each heaven is guided 'cordin' to how much you give on airth Brudder Jack now will now pass de hat."

The hat was passed, turned upside down on the desk and the contents counted. Then the preacher said

"Brudders an' sisters, dar a two bits in de hat, an' I seed de white man frow it in He is darfore gwine to a two shillin heaven, an de hull rest o' you won't even git a look frew de keyd We will now sing de Doxology!"—New York World.

The Disobedient Husband

Mrs. Rural (angrily) You promised me when you went up to the city last winter that wouldn't go near Cousin Maggie's.

Mr Rural—Yes, my dear

"But you did"

"I—I only took one meal there my dear"

"I knew it—I know you had taken a meal there or something Murder will out."

"What's happened, my dear?"

"She writes that she is coming here with her six children to stay all summer."—New York Weekly

The Real Trouble

Dashaway—I had the most curious conversation the other day after I had taken dinner with you.

Cleverton—Is that so? What was the trouble?

Dashaway—I couldn't tell at first. I felt weak and faint for several minutes.

Cleverton—And then?

Dashaway—It suddenly occurred to me that I hadn't had anything to eat.—Brooklyn Life.

How to Test Diamonds.

Put the doubtful stone into a leaden cup with some powdered fluor spar and a little oil of vitriol Warm the cup over some lighted charcoal in a fireplace, or wherever there is a strong draft to carry away the noxious vapors that will arise. While these vapors come rising let the whole cool and then stir the mixture with a glass rod to fish out the diamond. If you find it intact it is a genuine stone, if false it will be corroded. Paste diamonds will disappear [illegible]

Bayley, pastor of the State street Congregational church in Portland, Me., will preach. In the evening Rev. Manly D. Chase, of the South Congregational church, will preach.

Mr. J. W. Mudge, of the Ute hotel at Ute Park, was in the city yesterday. He reports the house well filled all the time with a fine class of people and expects the season at his place to last until late in the fall. People who go to the Ute are not hunting "seasons" very much. But wish for quiet rest and enjoy it. As the fall in the prettiest time of year in the park they are likely to remain until driven out by winter.

There was a very pleasant time at the grounds of the Colorado Springs Tennis club on Saturday afternoon. The members of the club were out in force with their friends, and the forces were augmented by a very considerable party from Manitou. A large party of cottagers and Cliff house people came in one of the Cheyenne wagons with four horses. It was excellent work with the tennis and balls, and the ladies of the party did well.

A runaway accident occurred yesterday afternoon on Cheyenne mountain which fortunately did not prove very serious. A party from the Manitou hotels were driving a vehicle from the El Paso livery barn had been visiting the grave of "H. H." and were returning up the hill. When at the first turn a wheel gave way and the vehicle was turned. All the occupants were thrown to the ground and more or less bruised and injured, but no one seriously. The top of the carriage was badly wrecked. The names of the party could not be learned.

Change of Name Simply.

Every old time citizen of Colorado remembers the old wholesale millinery and hat firm of Weber & Howland, ten years ago succeeded by the now well known firm of W. S. Howland & Co. When the latter succeeded the former, Mr. E. H. Simonson a heavy New York importer and manufacturer of millinery, was made partner in the new firm. This co-partnership has existed ever since, up to July 14 last, when Mr. Simonson purchased the retail department and Mr. Howland the wholesale business. Mr. Simonson goes to the eastern markets twice per year and selects personally from the latest samples and stocks of imported and domestic millinery. He is now in New York buying his fall goods. See notice of change of firm in another column.

Meeting of the Institute Board.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the trustees of the Deaf and Blind institute was held yesterday in the institute building. All the members of the board were present and included Judge Daniel Hawks, Col. H. Bowman, Hon. J. A. Davis and Messrs. Lawton and Humphrey.

The contract for the building of the hospital was let to William Munro for $3,420. The superintendent was authorized to purchase a large bake-oven, and other routine business was transacted. W. S. Gilbert, formerly connected with the Missouri School for the Deaf, was elected to a teachership in the deaf department, and John E. Ray was re-elected superintendent of the institute for a term of two years, dating from Aug. 6.

SOLID COMFORT FOR 25c.
Allen Austin's Little Corn Thief will steal away your corns while you are sleeping.

No gentle shower of growing spring
With patter on the flowers;
No warbling bird upon the wing
With nest in summer bowers;
No murmuring wind or softly played
With aspiring leaves and fanned
Their rustling to a song that made—
A cause like our GOLD BAND.

THE
PREVIOUS QUESTION
Which was propounded to us
"HOW MAY WE REDUCE OUR STOCK?"
We answered it in part by naming special values which we thought would move the goods, and we were correct. They are Being Called for
At a rate which encourages us to make still further reductions, and we believe you will concede, when you see them, that our offering
Admits No Debate
But are genuinely irresistible.
Here are some of them

$ 9 00 suits for	$ 6 75
$10 00 suits for	7 50
$12 50 suits for	9 40
$15 00 suits for	11 25
$16 00 suits for	12 00
$18 00 suits for	13 50

And so on. Twenty-five per cent off on any suit in our house for the next 10 days, room is what we want now instead of profits. Come now while the iron is hot.
